Week 1: Former Mr. Basketball in New York plays for a team in his native Kansas Patrick McCaw/News-Leader (FILE) INDIAN LAND, Mo. – Brett Dickerson is visiting his family and friends over the last few days since completing his transfer to Johnson County Community College in Olathe,

Kansas. Dickerson is the 2018 Mr. Basketball in New York, after averaging 20.5 points and 7.2 rebounds a game in helping Pratt Community High School to a Section II state championship this past November. He is the first New York player in that category in 25 years. Dickerson is most remembered for his game-winning shot in overtime of the 2017 sectional final, in which he hit a shot from the baseline as the buzzer sounded to beat Westside in front of his mother's family. He was named the sectional MVP that season. While Dickerson is hoping to get some experience at JCCC, the K-State transfer also has scholarship opportunities. He was granted a release from his scholarship at Kansas State and is still eligible to play for the Wildcats. Related Stories Brett Dickerson Dickerson has been on Twitter since the age of 12, before the World Wide Web even became a thing. He's been an avid basketball fan since elementary school, when the Jazz first drafted him.

Dickerson, originally from suburban New York, is a quiet, unassuming man. And at nearly 6-foot-7, he's already enrolled at JCCC with a 3.9 grade-point average. He's declared for the 2018 NBA Draft, and he's averaged 11.4 points per game for his high school career.

Dickerson is majoring in sports management, with aspirations of playing professional basketball. “I’m actually surprised I haven’t heard from basketball teams,” he said. “I was hoping to do that, but I
